DePaul's Fall 2002 Freshman Feeder High Schools

- Three in four of DePaul's new freshmen came from high schools in Illinois, although in total we drew students from high schools in all 50 states and several countries.
- Since 1997, over 2,000 high schools around the country have sent DePaul new freshmen.
- In 1997, half of the freshmen came from 82 schools (of about 500). In 2002, although the number of freshmen grew from 1,231 to 2,256 (83%), half now came from 78 schools (of about 700 this year).
- Nine schools sent DePaul more than 25 students, and together accounted for 14% of the 2,256 new freshmen.
- Lane Technical High School has topped the list of feeder schools since at least 1996, with 82 students in 2002.
- Since 1997, 111 schools have been added to the feeder list in Illinois alone, 80 of which are outside Chicago.
